SHOWER BRINGS JOY TO GROWER

Rain This Morning Did Many Thousands of Dollars Worth of Good

This section was blessed with a badly-needed shower at an early hour this morning and farmers report that it did thousands of dollars worth of good, especially to the corn and potatoes. While the rain in this immediate vicinity was not heavy, it was decidedly refreshing to vegetation.
South of Dixon the rainfall was considerably heavier.

COMMISSIONS ARE IN DANGER

Prospective U. S. Army Officers Were Caught Gambling.

Fort Sheridan, July 13—As the result of a raid here last night 22 men working to obtain commissions as officers in the new army were arrested, being caught, it is said, while playing dice for large sums. Whether or not the guilty ones will be summarily dismissed or merely placed under certain limitations is not yet known.

One Million Men Will Be Drawn To Fill National Army And Guard

Washington, July 12—Plans for the draft of America's new army are ready.

Secretary of War Baker stated tonight that the gigantic lottery for 687,000 fighting men to be mobilized as soon as possible waits only upon completion of registration lists.

Within a few days the date for the drawing will be set and quotas to be filled by cities, counties and states will be computed. Then all will be prepared for President Wilson to say the word and for Secretary Baker, blindfolded, to draw the numbers.

Drawing At One Time.

The entire drawing will be done at one time so that each of the 3,659-382 men who registered June 5 last may know the order in which they may be called for military service.

Probably only the first 3,000,000 names will be reached in the draft to fill the two quotas in the new army of a million authorized by the selective draft law. But for the immediate purpose of raising the first increment of the new army and national guard, probably not more than the first million and a half registered men drawn will be called for examination.

COSSACKS TURN EYES TOWARD R. R. CENTER

WITH HALICZ IN THEIR HANDS RUSSIANS GO AFTER STYR.

EXPECT STRONG COUNTER ATTACK

Associated Press Leased Wire
Petrograd, July 13—Now that Halicz is in Russian possession the eyes of Gen. Korniloff's cavalry Cossacks are turned toward the railway center of Styr, a town of 30,000 inhabitants, a junction of the line from Lemberg to Lawoczne, and a branch line to Chodorow. Military writers describing the enemy, say its main strength is on the east and northeast and it is weakest on the south.

There is widespread expectation of an important counter attack on the north front.

Gen. Korniloff's Russian armies which have driven a vast wedge into the Teutonic lines in eastern Galicia, appear to be at the crucial point in their campaign for Lemberg.

Having crossed the river Lomnica, behind which Austro-German forces planted themselves in their retreat, the Russians have opened up the possibility of turning the whole Teuton-ic line northward.

Battles now in progress may determine the fate of Lemberg and all the eastern Galicia territory.

On the French front there is only local fighting.

Gen. Haig's troops continue comparative inactivity.

INVENTOR TO MANAGE MUSICNOTE PLANT

F. C. BILLINGS OF MILWAUKEE TO DIRECT OPERATION OF
OF DIXON FACTORY.

MACHINERY IS NOW BEING MADE

Music Note Device Under Construction In Milwaukee—Other Machines Coming.

F. C. Billings spent yesterday in Dixon in conference with R. A. Rodesch and other officials of the Rodesch-Billings Co., after which it was announced that Mr. Billings would spend the greater portion of his time hereafter in this city as general manager of the company. H. C. Billings one of his sons, will make his home in Dixon hereafter and will enter the employ of the company as arranger and master maker of the new music-note rolls.

The musicnote song roll is expected to be one of the largest sellers that has ever been brought before the public in the player roll line. The words and notes are printed on the margin of the perforated roll and as the roll is played on the player-piano a song can be sung just as it is from the sheet music and the accompaniment is properly played by the perforated roll.

As has been noted in these columns heretofore, F. C. Billings is the inventor of this new roll, has had it patented and these patents are controlled and used exclusively by the Rodesch-Billings Co. in the manufacture of these rolls here in Dixon. Mr.
Billings has also invented a machine for printing the words and notes on these rolls, which is also controlled by the company.

This machine is being made in Milwaukee and is about finished and ready for delivery, as are additional Rodesch perforating machines being made in Chicago. The war situation has caused some delay in getting the machines made, but they are now nearly done and will be delivered this month according to the promises of the firm making them.

Operations will be rushed to the limit at the plant on East River St.
in order to get stock made up in time for the fall trade. The company has already accepted some large orders for fall delivery.

COLUMBUS KNIGHTS TO RAISE WAR FUND

EVERY MEMBER OF ORDER ASK-ED TO GIVE AT LEAST TWO DOLLARS.

Dixon members of the Knights of Columbus have been notified of a recent action of the head officials of the order, calling upon each member to contribute $2 or more toward a fund for the erection and maintenance of recreation camps in the army and to defray the expense of extra chaplains. It is believed that Dixon Council, with its 144 members, will raise nearly $1,000, as nearly every member has expressed his willingness to contribute more than the minimum asked. There are 383,688 members of the order in the United States and there is no doubt their total contributions, to be used for the comfort of Uncle Sam's soldiers regardless of creed, will exceed $1,000, 000. The week beginning July 22 has been designated as K. C. War Camp Fund Week.

following telegram from President Wilson:

"May I not respectfully urge the great danger of citizens taking the law into their own ity is assumed when such preced-

San Francisco, July 13—The far west continues today to align itself against disturbances caused by the Industrial Workers of the World. The state, county and city officials and some citizens acting on their own behalf, were active, following the lead of Bisbee, Ariz., where, at an early hour, the citizens who yesterday deported more than 1100 men had been asked to mobilize against the return

DIG POTATOES NOW IS GROCERS ADVICE

SAYS SAVING WILL BE EFFECTU-AL IF SPUDS ARE DUG AS NEEDED.

The proprietor of one of Dixon's largest grocery stores advises all who have potatoes in their gardens to dig them now as they need them, rather than allow them to mature, during which time potatoes are purchased.
He says that two bushels bought from the dealer now cost $4.50. If the spuds are dug from the garden now there is an estimated loss of about 50 per cent in quantity—that is, the two bushels if allowed to mature might produce three bushels. But the two bushels now are worth $4.50—when all potatoes have matured the three bushels will be worth only $3, or possibly less.

The appointment of Dr. Carriel as the first superintendent of the Dixon

the institution for patients this year, although no definite announcement has been made concerning what detail.

The first superintendent is a son of Dr. Henry F. Carriel, who, from 1870 to 1893, was superintendent of the central hospital for the insane at Jacksonville. Dr. H. B. Carriel was appointed superintendent of this hos-resigned and was succeeded by Dr. E.

L. Hill, the present superintendent.

The first superintendent of the Dixon colony also opened the Barkon-

The fine Jersey cow which G. W.
Schrock of North Galena avenue reported early this week as having and fell into the hole, breaking her neck.

Don't leave your car on what por-

"CONDITIONS" DON'T INTEREST BRUNDAGE

Attorney General After Those Who Caused Massacre.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL., July 13. Square warning was served on East St. Louis that Attorney General Brundage would drive the sword of justice to the hilt in his prosecution of lynchers and incendiaries.

In the face of reports that he was imperiling his person, the attorney general spent another half day in the sodden community laying the ground work for indictments that will be asked of the St. Clair county grand jury next Monday. Then he returned to Springfield, leaving three members of his regular staff and two special assistant attorneys general on the job.

Two hours after Brundage had left town the citizens committee of one hundred held one of its formal dickeringings, which as usual ran largely to denunciation of the police department by men not in sympathy with Mayor Mollman and suggestions for maintaining a clean town in the future.

Nothing was said about the necessity of hanging a few persons for what had been done in the recent past. The disposition, even among those who differed as to method, seemed to be to forget the shootings, burnings, hangings, mutilations and slow tortures of negroes and to start the city off with a clean slate, or rather with a new set of fellows who make a living off politics.

There were solemn warnings that the town and its tax payers would suffer financially; that loans would be called; that insurance would be cancelled. Former Judge E. C. Kramer predicted that a quarter of a million dollars worth of damage would be against the city because the destruction of life and property.

LONGING FOR A CHILD

Young Wife Almost in Despair. Now has Beautiful Baby Girl.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought joy to many childless women by restoring them to normal health. Here is a notable case. Omaha, Neb.—"I suffered from female troubles when I was seventeen years old. At eighteen I was married and my trouble was no better so I consulted a physician who said that there was not much I could do and I could not have children. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has proved worth its weight in gold to me for I am not only well but have a baby girl, so when I hear of any woman suffering as I was I tell her of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Mrs. W. Hughes, 19 Majestic Apts., Omaha, Neb. In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

Milas-Hanson
Miss Anna Milas, who has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. John L. Stachel, of this city, was united in marriage in Clinton, Iowa, Tuesday, to Arthur J. Hanson of Clinton. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. McLaughlin. The wedding gown was a handsome creation of white satin and lace, trimmed in silver spangles and pearls. Pink and white sweet peas were carried by the bride. The traveling apparel of the bride was a blue serge suit with gold cloth trimmings.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hanson came to Dixon where the wedding breakfast was served at the J. L. Stachel residence. The house decorations were in pink and white, with roses used as table decorations. A handsome wedding cake also adorned the table. The guests were a number of relatives.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Milas of Seneca, Illinois. Mr. Hanson is employed as a member of the clerical force in the Clinton postoffice. They will make their home in Clinton.

Was Pleasant Picnic
Two features that stood out prominently in the minds of some of the little tots that attended St. Luke's Parish picnic at Assembly Park Thursday evening was that there was "ice cream for supper" and that "we ran races with the rector", even having the audacity to state, "and we beat". So the tiny tots of the Sunday School and the bigger folk as well are quite agreed that it was a very pleasant picnic. The supper was spread in the park near Nan Cassadine lodge at 6:30 o'clock and nearly one hundred participated.

HOW SWEDEN CONTROLS FOOD.

Sweden furnishes to the United States an admirable lesson in food control.

Dr. Oswald Siren of Stockholm, a well known educator and writer who has visited this country many times, has just arrived in New York. He gives an outline of the food conservation movement of his country to a representative of the Evening Post.

Two years ago the Swedish government began to formulate a system for food control and now has every ounce of food as well as many other necessities under its control.

A large commission composed of experienced men is in direct charge and they operate through subcommissions in different parts of the kingdom.

In addition there are advisory councils made up of experts in the different lines of food production.

One of the first acts of this commission was to fix a maximum price for foods.

Before that workmen were unable to meet the prices shoved up to extortionate points through speculation.

Today, according to Dr. Siren, a Swede gets food in direct proportion to his needs and the workmen get more bread than the king's counselors.

The food commission fixed the maximum price by taking a complete inventory of all food in the country.

Every householder was forced to tell under oath all the food he had in his possession, together with the number of persons in the household to be fed. The census also showed the supplies in the hands of the producers and the middlemen.

Food cannot be exported or imported except through government license. This is the plan embodied in President Wilson's recent embargo.

Food cards are issued to the people based upon the supply in the country and the number of people to be fed.

Despite this there were hunger riots in Stockholm the latter part of May and the first of June because the very poor people could not get enough to eat.

Dr. Siren declared that Sweden has sent no food to Germany because there was none to send.

He insists that the people of the United States do not realize the depth of the struggle going on in Europe and that America's problem is strict economy in everything.

NEW ARMY CHAPLAINS.

"When the first American army takes over part of the first line trenches in France, doctors of divinity as well as doctors of medicine will be right where the firing line is hottest. In other words, in this war army chaplains, like army surgeons, will be exposed to danger just as much as the first line troops."

The speaker was Rev. Worth M. Tippy, executive secretary of the commission of chaplains named by the federal council of the churches of Christ in America, which embraces all Protestant denominations.

Dr. Tippy is working right with war and navy departments in securing proper chaplains. Each denomination has a committee and the chairman from these constitute the commissions on chaplains.

Dr. Tippy said: "These chaplains are appointed according to numerical strength of the various denominations. There has never been a time when the standard was so high. Each man must have college and seminary training and actual experience as pastor. He must be a man with decided personality, a good mixer, an open-air man of the physique that can stand trench life. Each man considered has his record carefully gone over."

"As a result the men picked will be given a course in first aid to the injured. The chaplains will go right with their men into the first line trenches. Chaplains are commissioned officers and will be expected to take the same risks other officers do. They will, therefore, go everywhere except on a charge. When the troops go over the trenches to attack an enemy, chaplains, surgeons and stretcher-bearers remain behind. As soon, however, as the charge has gone home, these men cross No-Man's Land between the trenches."

Last night Dixon people sat in comfortable chairs in a local moving picture show and saw the American standard-bearer, General John J. Pershing, disembark in France and ride through the streets of Paris, while the multitudes hailed him and greeted him wildly. The possibilities of science must be great, judging by the accomplishments of science.

The unprecedented sale of clothing in the last six months has reduced our stock to a very low point.

Advancing costs of pure wool suits such as are at present in stock make these suits worth a great deal more than the prices at which they are now selling.

We will continue selling the clothes now on hand at the same prices, which are very low considering the advancing costs that have prevailed during the early part of the season.

Future prices on clothes must necessarily raise hence you will find it profitable to buy now.

ASK WILSON TO CUT FOOD KNOT

Senate Finds Itself Tied up in Inextricable Tangle.

PROHIBITION WILL NOT DOWN

Senator Gore Still Keeps His Dry Measure Ready to Poke Into the Machinery—Other Elements Make Early Passage of Measure Impossible Unless President Acts.

Washington, July 13.—Democratic leaders of the senate, finding it almost impossible to reconcile conflicting views on the food control bill, decided to appeal to President Wilson to outline his opinion of what compromises should be agreed upon to hasten action on the measure.

The senate agriculture committee decided not to make any indorsement or recommendation regarding the Gore substitute bill. When the senate met Senator Gore offered it as an individual proposition, with the understanding that many of its provisions will have general support in lieu of those in the pending bill.

NAMED TO HEAD EDUCATORS

Mrs. Bradford of Colorado Nominated at Portland Convention.

Portland, Ore., July 13.—Mary C. C. Bradford, state superintendent of public instruction of Colorado, was named as a candidate for president of the National Education association for 1917-18 by the nominating committee of the convention in session here. The election followed the next day.

Inter-Ally Meeting in Paris.

Paris, July 13.—An inter-ally meeting, impelled by the Russian government, will be held in Paris at the ministry of foreign affairs. The French press attributes considerable importance to this meeting.

Believe that the Gore bill generally embraces ideas for compromise legislation. It would limit government control to food and fuel, eliminating steel, iron, copper, cotton and many other products.

The prohibition question, it is agreed probably will have to be settled in conference without further senate action, because of the unanimous consent agreement under which the senate acted last week.

These decisions were reached at conferences of Senator Martin, Democratic leader; Chairman Gore of the agriculture committee; Senator Chamberlain, who has charge of the legislation in the senate, and Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, whose work on the war tax bill is suspended pending final action on prohibition.

ONE MILLION MEN WILL BE DRAWN

the regular army since April 1st, 1917.

Secretary Baker admitted he will draw the fateful gelatin capsules which will contain the key numbers, which will apply to registered men in all of the 4559 local exemption districts.

The first levy under the draft will call 500,000 men to the ranks of the national army, 142,000 for the national guard, recruited to 16 full divisions, and 45,000 to bring the regular army to full war strength of 300,000.

Need 40,000 for U. S. Army

Sec. Baker explained that the 687,000 may be changed slightly by regular army recruiting. The regular army lacked only 39,781 of full war strength. It has not been fully decided whether allowances shall be made for eleventh hour recruits.

Between now and the date of the drafting newspapers of the country will be furnished with complete list of registrants in each exemption district in their locality with the red ink serial number, name and address of each man registered. As soon as the drawing is made the key numbers will be flashed to newspapers in the order they are drawn, and each newspaper will be able to list the men in all their local districts which have this number and print them in the order of their standing.

Notification By Mail.

The first news that he is called for service, or that his name stands so low on the list that he probably will not be called for the first levy, will be given registrants by the newspapers. Later the men called will be notified by mail to present themselves for physical examination.

After the quotas for cities is fixed and the first levy is drawn the first name on the remaining list will head the second levy. Exemption boards, however, may continue to call men in proper order from time to time to fill gaps in the ranks.

It has been definitely decided that the 309,000 enlisted men, which represents the present enlisted strength of the national guard, will be supplemented by enough others drawn by draft to build the guard to full war strength of 453,344. The three armies as constituted after the draft will be made up as follows:

National army, 500,000; national guard, 453,344; regular army, 309,000. Total, 1,253,344.

OBITUARY

GEORGE W. HOWELL

After years of remarkable resistance that often seemed only a patient waiting, Mr. George W. Howell succumbed to the "grim reaper" last Friday morning at the home of his daughter, Miss Josephine Howell, 120 South Eucalyptus street, Ingleswood.

Mr. Howell was nearly eighty-two years of age, having been born at Newton, Long Island, August 27, 1835. There he grew to manhood and entered upon his life work as contractor and builder.

His integrity and kindly, generous disposition won for him respect and esteem in keeping with a long line of ancestors noted for their sterling qualities.

From among his playmates he chose Miss Josephine Rapelye to be his wife and to this happy couple were born five children, four of whom survive them—Eugene Howell, Fargo, North Dakota; Westley Howell, Pasadena, California, and George W., Jr., and Josephine of Ingleswood, who made the home for their father.

In 1880 the family moved to Dixon, Illinois, where Mr. Howell won an honored place among new people, and from which place his wife passed on, leaving him to the tender care of their daughter whose ministrations were lovingly shared to the end by Mrs. Emma Shaw who came with them to Ingleswood about six years ago.

Mr. Howell was not a member of any church, but from early childhood until declining health prevented, he was a faithful attendant at the services of the Methodist Episcopal church and his daily walk with Christ was so close that he was enabled to keep the new commandment and loved his neighbor as himself.

He loved the birds and flowers as varied expressions of the one infinite Divine Mind, and if he cast a backward glance it must have been a pleasure to see his "outgrown shell" among such an artistic profusion of beautiful flowers—the silent tributes of loving friends to a grand old man.

From the Hudson Chapel the body was taken to its last resting place.

As part of the service Mrs. H. J. Moore sang with sweetest simplicity "Face to Face" and "Thine is a living way; In death it has no part; Thy law is Life, Thy way is peace, No other can we choose."

THE HILLMAN

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—On a trip through the English-Cumberland country the breakdown of her automobile forces Louise Maurel, a famous London actress, to spend the night at the farm house of John and Stephen Strangewey.

CHAPTER II—At dinner Louise discovers that the brothers are woman-hating recluses.

CHAPTER III—Next morning she discovers that John, the younger brother, has recently come into a large fortune. In company with him she explores the farm.

CHAPTER IV—In a talk with him she is disturbed by his rigid moral principles and finds that his wealth has created no desire for any other life than the simple one he is leading. She tells him her name and that she is the friend of the prince of Seyre, a rich and disreputable neighbor.

CHAPTER V—Three months later, unable to rid himself of the memory of the actress and in spite of his brother's protests, John goes to London.

CHAPTER VI.

The great French dramatist, dark, pale-faced and corpulent, stood upon the extreme edge of the stage, brandishing his manuscript in his hand. He banged the palm of his left hand with the rolled-up manuscript and looked at them all furiously.

"The only success I care for," he thundered, "is an artistic success!"

"With Miss Maurel playing your leading part, M. Gralliot," the actor-manager declared, "not to speak of a company carefully selected to the best of my judgment, I think you may venture to anticipate even that."

The dramatist bowed hurriedly to Louise.

"You recall to me a fact," he said gallantly, "which almost reconciles me to this diabolical travesty of some of my lines. Proceed, then—proceed! I will be as patient as possible."

The stage manager shouted out some directions from his box. A gentleman in faultless morning clothes, who seemed to have been thoroughly enjoying the interlude, suddenly adopted the puppetlike walk of a footman. Other actors, who had been whispering together in the wings, came back to their places. Louise advanced alone, a little languidly, to the front of the stage. At the first sound of her voice M. Gralliot, nodding his head vigorously, was soothed.

Her speech was a long one. It appeared that she had been arraigned before a company of her relatives, assembled to comment upon her misdeeds. She wound up with a passionate appeal to her husband, Mr. Miles Faraday, who had made an unexpected appearance. M. Gralliot's face, as she concluded, was wreathed in smiles.

"Ah!" he cried. "You have lifted us all up! Now I feel once more the inspiration. Mademoiselle, I kiss your hand," he went on. "It is you who still redeem my play. You bring back the spirit of it to me. In you I see the embodiment of my Theresie."

Louise made no movement. Her eyes were fixed upon a certain shadowy corner of the wings. Overwrought as she had seemed, with the emotional excitement of her long speech, there was now a new and curious expression upon her face. She was looking at a tall, hostating figure that stood just off the stage. She forgot the existence of the famous dramatist who hung upon her words. Her feet no longer trod the dusty boards of the theater. She was almost painfully conscious of the perfume of apple blossom.

"You!" she exclaimed, stretching out her hands. "Why do you not come and speak to me? I am here!"

John came out upon the stage. The French dramatist, with his hands behind his back, made swift mental notes of an interesting situation. He saw the coming of a man who stood like a giant among them, sunburnt, buoyant with health, his eyes bright with the wonder of his unexpected surroundings; a man in whose presence everyone else seemed to represent an effect and pallid type of humanity.

Those first few sentences, spoken in the midst of a curious little crowd of strangers, seemed to John, when he thought of his long waiting, almost pitifully inadequate. Louise, recognizing the difficulty of the situation, swiftly recovered her composure. She was both tactful and gracious. "Mr. Faraday," she said appealingly, "Mr. Strangewey comes from the country—he is, in fact, the most complete countryman I have ever met in my life. He comes from Cumberland, and he once—well, very nearly saved my life. He knows nothing about theaters, and he hasn't the least idea of the importance of a rehearsal. You won't mind if we put him somewhere out of the way till we have finished, will you?"

"After such an introduction," Faraday said in a tone of resignation, "Mr. Strangewey would be welcome at any time."

"There's a dear man!" Louise exclaimed. "Let me introduce him quickly. Mr. John Strangewey—Mr. Miles Faraday, M. Gralliot, Miss Sophie Gerard, my particular little friend. The prince of Seyre you already know, although you may not recognize him trying to balance himself on that absurd stool."

John bowed in various directions, and Faraday, taking him good-naturedly by the arm, led him to a garden seat at the back of the stage.

"There!" he said. "You are one of the most privileged persons in London. You shall hear the finish of our rehearsal. There isn't a press man in London I'd have near the place."

Twenty-four hours away from his silent hills, John looked out with puzzled eyes from his dusty seat among ropes and pulleys and leaning fragments of scenery. What he saw and heard seemed to him, for the most part, a meaningless tangle of gestures and phrases. The men and women in fashionable clothes, moving about before that gloomy space of empty auditorium, looked more like marionettes than creatures of flesh and blood, drawn this way and that at the bidding of the stout, masterful Frenchman, who was continually muttering exclamations and banging the manuscript upon his hand. It seemed like a dream picture, with unreal men and women moving about aimlessly, saying strange words.

Then there came a moment which brought a tingle into his blood, which plunged his senses into hot confusion. He rose to his feet. It was a play which they were rehearsing, of course! It was a damnable thing to see Louise taken into that cold and obviously unreal embrace, but it was only a play. It was part of her work.

John resumed his seat and folded his arms. With the embrace had fallen an imaginary curtain, and the rehearsal was over. They were all crowded together, talking in the center of the stage. The prince, who had stepped across the footlights, made his way to where John was sitting.

"So you have deserted Cumberland for a time?" he courteously inquired. "I came up last night," John replied. "London, at this season of the year," the prince observed, "is scarcely at its best."

John smiled. "I am afraid," he said, "that I am not critical. It is eight years since I was here last. I have not been out of Cumberland during the whole of that time."

The prince, after a moment's incredulous stare, laughed softly to himself.

"You are a very wonderful person, Mr. Strangewey," he declared. "I have heard of your good fortune. If I can be of any service to you during your stay in town," he added politely, "please command me."

"You are very kind," John replied gratefully.

Louise broke away from the little group and came across toward them.

"Free at last!" she exclaimed. "Now let us go out and have some tea."

They made their way down the little passage and out into the sudden blaze of the small streets. Louise led John to a small car which was waiting in the rear.

"The Carlton," she told the man, as he arranged the rugs. "And now," she added, turning to John, "why have you come to London? How long are you going to stay? What are you going to do? And—most important of all—in what spirit have you come?"

John breathed a little sigh of contentment. "I came to see you," he confessed bluntly.

"Dear me!" she exclaimed, looking at him with a little smile. "How down-right you are!"

"The truth—" he began.

"Has to be handled very carefully," she said, interrupting him. "The truth is either beautiful or crude, and the people who meddle with such a wonderful thing need a great deal of tact. You have come to see me, you say. Very well, then, I will be just as frank. I have been hoping that you would come!"

"You can't imagine how good it is to hear you say that," he declared.

"Mind," she went on, "I have been hoping for more reasons than one. You have come to realize, I hope, that it is your duty to try to see a little more of life than you possibly can, leading a patriarchal existence among your flocks and herds."

They were silent for several moments.

"I thought you would come," Louise said at last; "and I am glad, but even in these first few minutes I want to say something to you. If you wish to really understand the people you meet here and the life they lead, don't be like your brother—too quick to judge. Do not let your prejudices too tightly. You will come across many problems, many situations which will seem strange to you. Do not make up your mind about anything in a hurry."

"I will remember that," he promised. "You must remember, though, that I don't expect ever to become a convert. I believe I am a countryman, bred and born. Still, there are some things that I want to understand, if I can, and more than anything else—I want to see you!"

She faced his direct speech this time with a deliberation.

"I do not expect," he replied simply, "I shall be able to answer for myself the ridicule which has kept me awake at night for weeks and months, which has puzzled me more than anything else in life has ever done."

"You really have thought of me, then?"

"I have never been so much interested in a man since I was a child," Louise remarked, with an air of self-satisfaction. "If you succeed in making a favorable impression upon him, I promise you your share."

"Tell us some more of your impressions, Mr. Strangewey," Sophie begged. "You want to laugh at me," John protested good-humoredly.

"On the contrary," the prince assured him, as he fitted a cigarette into

I always felt that we should meet again, that you would come to London. The problem is," she added, smiling, "what to do with you now you are here."

"I haven't come to be a nuisance," he assured her. "I just want a little help from you. I want to understand because it is your world. I want to feel myself nearer to you. I want—"

She gripped his arms suddenly. She knew well enough that she had deliberately provoked his words, but there was a look in her face almost of fear. "Don't let us be too serious all at once," she begged quickly. "If you have one fault, my dear big friend from the country," she went on, with

"I want to feel myself nearer to you I want—" a swiftly assumed gaiety, "it is that you are too serious for your years. Sophie and I between us must try to cure you of that! You see, we have arrived."

He handed her out, followed her across the pavement, and found himself plunged into what seemed to him to be an absolute vortex of human beings, all dressed in very much the same fashion, all laughing and talking together very much in the same tone, all criticizing every fresh group of arrivals with very much the same eyes and manner. The palm court was crowded with little parties seated at the various round tables, partaking languidly of the most indolent meal of the day. Even the broad passageway was full of men and women, standing about and talking or looking for tables. One could scarcely hear the music of the orchestra for the babel of voices.

The prince of Seyre beckoned to them from the steps. He seemed to have been awaiting their arrival there—a cold, immaculate, and considering his kind of height, a curiously distinguished-looking figure.

"I have a table inside," he told them as they approached. "It is better for conversation. The rest of the place is like a bear garden. I am not sure if they will dance here today, but if they do, they will come also into the restaurant."

"Wise man!" Louise declared. "I too, hate the babel outside." "We are faced," said the prince, as he took up the menu, "with our daily problem. What can I order for you?"

"A cup of chocolate," Louise replied. "And Miss Sophie?"

"Tea, please."

John, too, preferred tea; the prince ordered abstinence.

"A polyglot meal, isn't it, Mr. Strangewey?" said Louise, as the order was executed; "not in the least what that wonderful old butler of yours would understand by tea. Sophie, put your hat on straight if you want to make a good impression on Mr. Strangewey. I am hoping that you two will be great friends."

Sophie turned toward John with a little grimace.

"Louise is so tactless!" she said. "I am sure any idea you might have had of liking me will have gone already. Has it, Mr. Strangewey?"

"On the contrary," he replied, a little stiffly, but without hesitation, "I was thinking that Miss Maurel could scarcely have set me a more pleasant task."

The girl looked reproachfully across at her friend.

"You told me he came from the wilds and was quite unsophisticated," she exclaimed.

"The truth," John assured them, looking with dismay at his little china cup, "comes very easily to us. We are brought up on it in Cumberland."

"Don't chatter too much, child," Louise said benignly. "I want to hear some more of Mr. Strangewey's impressions. This is—well, if not quite a fashionable crowd, yet very nearly so. What do you think of it—the women, for instance?"

"Well, to me," John confessed candidly, "they all look like dolls or manikins. Their dresses and their hats overshadow their faces. They seem all the time to be wanting to show, not themselves, but what they have on."

They all laughed. Even the prince's lips were parted by the flicker of a smile. Sophie leaned across the table with a sigh.

"Louise," she pleaded, "you will lend him to me sometimes, won't you? You won't keep him altogether to yourself? There are such a lot of places to take him to!"

"I was never greedy," Louise remarked, with an air of self-satisfaction. "If you succeed in making a favorable impression upon him, I promise you your share."

"Tell us some more of your impressions, Mr. Strangewey," Sophie begged. "You want to laugh at me," John protested good-humoredly.

"On the contrary," the prince assured him, as he fitted a cigarette into a long amber tube, "they want to laugh with you. You ought to realize your value as a companion in these days. You are the only person who can see the truth. Eyes and tastes blurred with custom perceive so little. You are quite right when you say that these women are like manikins; that their bodies and faces are lost; but one does not notice it until it is pointed out."

"We will revert," Louise decided, "to a more primitive life. You and I will inaugurate a missionary enterprise, Mr. Strangewey. We will judge the world afresh. We will reclothe and rehabilitate it."

The prince flicked the ash from the end of his cigarette.

"Morally as well as sartorially?" he asked.

There was a moment's rather queer silence. The music rose above the hubbub of voices and died away again. Louise rose to her feet. The prince, with a skillful maneuver, made his way to her side as they left the restaurant.

"Tomorrow afternoon, I think you said?" he repeated quietly. "You will be in town then?"

"Yes, I think so."

"You have changed your mind, then, about—"

"M. Gralliot will not listen to my leaving London," she interrupted rapidly. "He declares that it is too near the production of the play. My own part may be perfect, but he needs me for the sake of the others. He puts it like a Frenchman, of course."

They had reached the outer door, which was being held open for them by a bowing commissionaire. John and Sophie were waiting upon the pavement. The prince drew a little back.

"I understand," he murmured.

OUR BOYS ABROAD RAID CANDY SHOPS

But "Sammies" Give Gold In Exchange For Sweets.

A "FOUNTAIN PEN ARMY"

Frenchmen Note the Number of Those Articles Carried in the Blouse Jackets of the Americans—Yankees Warm Up to Canadians—Naval Officers In White Take Eye of Fair Parisiennes.

The demand for candy is strong in France from the American troops, but it has been met satisfactorily, although the boys judge the prices high.

The beer they generally condemn, not for its quality only, but for its warmth. "Don't seem much of a place," was the comment, followed by the anxious query, "Can we have a better time in Paris?"

Money changing involves mental anxiety, but 5 francs are offered as the equivalent of a dollar by the shopkeepers and readily accepted. It surprised the French to be told that these Americans still were paid in gold.

France began to recognize the value of athletics a few years before the war, which confirmed their importance. It is possible the new American allies will provide France with a long felt want in popularizing baseball.

"A Fountain Pen Army."

"It is a fountain pen army," chaffed a Frenchman as he noted the number of those articles that the Americans carried in their blouse pockets and seemed to be part of their equipment.

"I am an old man for the army," said a corporal, answering a query on what motive brought him to France. "but I have come to help wipe kaisers off the earth."

The American camp in France is splendidly situated on high ground and has been built within the month. It is lighted by electricity and has a fine water supply. The Y. M. C. A., which has installed a tent at the landing place, will open a large hut soon. The camp has taken on an American atmosphere.

It failed in no respect to meet the requirements of the overflowing tide of newcomers. It supplies picture postcards in large numbers and there is an "American bar," but American in name only. Ice cream soda is sought in vain.

An old looking French territorial who is on sentry duty along the docks, his hair grayed by three long years of service, beamed on the Americans, doubtless thinking his days of labor were now drawing to a close. The women smile and feel their hearts lighter as they watch this fine pledge of the sister democracy's aid.

In the arrival of the troops children chased pennies that the American boys threw among them from crowded docks as the ships passed along the quays and rejoiced over every band as it headed its regiment, for it is seldom that bands are heard now in France.

Chum at Once With Allies.

The fraternization of the Americans with the English, Canadians, Australians and French is remarkable, and the new arrivals are being received everywhere with open arms and open hearts. Last month nearly all the British troops not having near relatives in the British Isles have been coming to Paris on leave, and so the newly landed Americans find plenty of comrades able to speak their common language.

The Yankees warmed up particularly to the Canadians, among whom are many Americans, but the greatest surprise came at the way the French officers and poilus fraternize with their new allies. The warmest feeling exists between the French and British soldiers and officers, of course, but when they first met three years ago as allies they were too busy fighting for their lives to spend much time in friendly intercourse.

The Americans, however, are landing just at the time when the allies have the Germans "on the hip," and the French are throwing off their clannishness to welcome the Yankee tars and marines affectionately.

Another factor is that after three years' contact with the British nearly every French person knows a few words of English—hello, cheerio, good luck and similar expressions—and they are using them overtime on the Americans.

Paris Women Charmed.

The appearance of American naval officers in white duck summer uniforms in the smart Paris restaurants causes gasps of astonished delight, especially among the fair Parisiennes, who admire the chic, cool appearance of the officers.

Since the arrival of the Americans the police have had to wink at the law prohibiting singing and music in cafes and restaurants, as it is impossible to prevent the sailors, marines and regulars from gathering in quartets and teaching the Canadians and Australians the newest ragtime airs direct from America.

UNCEASING MISERY

Some Dixon Kidney Sufferers Get Little Rest or Comfort

There is little sleep, little rest, little peace for many a sufferer from kidney trouble. Life is one continual round of pain. You can't rest at night when there's kidney backache. You suffer twinges and "stabs" of pain, annoying urinary disorders, lameness and nervousness. You can't be comfortable at work with darting pains and blinding dizzy spells. Neglect these ailments and serious troubles may follow. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of disorder. Thousands have testified to their merit.

Proof of merit in this Dixon man's testimony:

John H. Falk, 510 W. Seventh Street, says: "I am a shoe-cutter by trade and have to be standing in front of a cutting machine. There is a great deal of jarring in connection with this work and I am sure that is what caused my kidneys to get out of order. I was completely down and out and unable to work for ten days. I could hardly move, my back pained so terribly and I couldn't lift the least weight. The kidney secretions passed too freely and it was annoying to have to get up so often at night to pass them. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at Prescott & Schildberg's Drug Store. After using them, the trouble disappeared."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Falk had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Hurrah! How's This?

Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freezezone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

20 Minutes from This to This—

Come and See it Work

Makes a Guaranteed Powerful Stauder Mak-a-Tractor

You have heard of the Stauder Mak-a-Tractor—you have seen pictures of it in the farm papers—but you cannot appreciate how practical it is, and how easy it is to operate, until you see it doing the actual farm work under practically the same conditions that you have right on your own farm.

PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION.

We are going to take a Stauder Mak-a-Tractor right out of our stock, and put it to the hardest kind of tests in order to show you how it will stand up under the most grilling work.

Such a thorough test and remarkable demonstration will be of the greatest interest to every farmer. You cannot afford to miss seeing it.

See the "Stauder Mak-a-Tractor" Do The Practical Work of The Farm

We want you to see it doing the work of four big, strong horses, but doing it FASTER and at a GREATLY REDUCED EXPENSE. We want you to SEE for yourself how a Ford automobile can be easily transformed IN ONLY TWENTY MINUTES to an efficient tractor—to SEE how it can do your plowing, your discing, your harrowing, your heavy hauling and how it will do these things exactly as you want them done.

After seeing this demonstration you will realize how the Stauder Mak-a-Tractor can plow from 25% to 50% more land in a day than can be plowed by horses, and how it can do other farm work more advantageously than when done by horses.

With the Stauder Mak-a-Tractor you can use your Ford for plowing in the morning, heavy hauling in the afternoon, and for pleasure driving in the evening.

It does not take a Factory Expert to Demonstrate the "Stauder Mak-a-Tractor"

We are going to show you how anybody who can drive a Ford can successfully operate a Stauder Mak-a-Tractor.

You can see how quickly and easily a Ford can be transformed into a machine for heavy hauling, and then again transformed back into a pleasure car.

You will surely be greatly interested in this exhibition, which you are cordially invited to attend.

Sensational Savings

Your horses are a big expense the whole year through, but they work only a few months. You can save the feed bills—you can save veterinary bills—you can save losses through death and—best of all—you can sell your grain at the highest market price ever known, instead of feeding it to your horses.

You can have your Ford touring car or runabout for pleasure purposes, and can also have a dependable tractor as well as a practical machine for heavy hauling, ready for use at any time. You can change from automobile to tractor, or from tractor to automobile in only 20 minutes.

DEMONSTRATION CONDUCTED BY

Special Features

The speed of the Ford is converted to pulling power, and the Ford power is multiplied 11 times through gear reduction. The Special Stauder Ford Radiator has six times the cooling capacity of the Regular Ford Radiator, and provides perfect cooling for tractor, heavy hauling, and pleasure driving.

On account of the Ford having high ground clearance, the Stauder Mak-a-Tractor will travel on any road or straddle any stump, rock, or hummock that a Ford will pass over.

The Patent Force Feed Oiling System, with sight on dash, gives perfect lubrication. There is positively no stop on the Ford frame.

With the additional fifth wheel equipment, you can use your Ford for heavy hauling at a speed up to 5 miles per hour for road work. This attachment receives farm wagon bolster and reach of the ordinary farm wagon.

No Chance for Kidnapers.

Billy was quite proud of his baby sister and he thought the women really meant it when they said they would like to take her home with them. One day he was standing beside her buggy while his mother was shopping in a store. A woman came by and said, "My! My! What a pretty baby," and Billy said, "Yes, and there's a mamma belongs to her."
